Overview

As a member of the firm's Insurance Coverage and Extra-Contractual Litigation Group, trial lawyer Chloe O'Connell devotes her practice to defending national insurance companies against claims of bad faith, breach of contract, breach of fiduciary duty, negligent underwriting, and violations of consumer protection laws. She also represents insurers in coverage disputes arising under life, auto, property, and commercial general liability insurance policies. Much of her work involves legal research, analysis, and drafting motions, pleadings and other briefings.

A native of Newburyport, Massachusetts, Chloe earned her bachelor's degree in global commerce from Denison University in Granville, Ohio, and graduated with honors from the University of Tulsa College of Law in 2026. While in law school, she served on the board of editors of the Tulsa Law Review, as president of the Women's Law Caucus, and as a supreme court justice for the Student Bar Association. Chloe also competed in the AAJ National Mock Trial Competition and Board of Advocates competitions and was honored with the Order of Barrister's Award for Oral Advocacy.

A lifelong equestrian and competitive show jumper, Chloe credits her involvement in the sport with instilling the discipline, dedication, and strong work ethic that continue to shape her professional approach. Outside of her legal practice, she enjoys spending time at the stables and remains active in the equestrian community. She is also an enthusiastic supporter of the performing arts and has a long-time appreciation for musical theater.
